Introduction

This document was written as a tribute and testament to the blessings of extraordinary, everyday miracles. So often when one thinks of a miracle, we remember stories of Jesus turning water into wine and rising from the dead. We think of those who have recovered from life-threatening illnesses or injuries. And we may even recall those “lucky” souls who win millions of dollars in state lotteries.

Certainly, all these are indeed, miraculous events. But miracles are more than the big things that we may first think of when we hear the magical word, “miracle.” Miracles are the little occurrences that happen everyday, right under our very noses. Miracles happen in our homes, in our backyards, and in our hearts and lives. All of us experience miracles, each and every day, even if we do not view them as such. Miracles are everywhere, for everyone to experience and be blessed by.

I have written this document as a constant reminder to myself, and to you, of the many extraordinary, everyday miracles that are all around us. I hope these beautiful “little” miracles make you more aware of just how blessed we all truly are. As you read, I encourage you to reflect on the little miracles in your own life. Even at the seemingly hopeless times, when things may seem at their worst, miracles are still there for us, just waiting to be recognized. They are blessings for us, beacons in the darkness, and lighthouses in the storms of our lives. Always, no matter where you are in your life at this moment, remember... you are deeply, boundlessly loved!

Expect a miracle!
